20 Best Job Boards for Remote Work

View all

Top remote job boards include dedicated platforms like We Work Remotely, Remote OK, and FlexJobs for curated, high-quality listings. For specialized roles, Wellfound is ideal for startups, Arc for developers, and Remote100K for high-salary positions. Major platforms like LinkedIn and Indeed are also effective for finding remote-specific roles.

Top Dedicated Remote Job Boards

- We Work Remotely (WWR): Known as one of the largest, featuring diverse remote roles in tech, marketing, and design.
- Remote OK: A highly popular site with a high volume of remote jobs across various categories.
- FlexJobs: A curated, fee-based service, ensuring scam-free job listings.
- Wellfound (formerly Angellist): The premier spot for finding remote roles at startups, often including equity.
- NoDesk: A clean, curated board for tech and digital nomad jobs.
- Remote.co: Offers a wide variety of remote roles, including customer service and sales.

User Reputation & Reviews

User feedback is polarized, with some praising its efficiency and others warning about subscription costs. Trustpilot

- Pros: Users on platforms like Reddit have reported that the platform found relevant developer roles faster than major sites like LinkedIn. It currently holds a high rating on Trustpilot (approx. 4.6/5 stars).

How legit and how good it is

- Many users say it is a real, functioning service (not a pure scam) and report finding good-quality listings, sometimes even landing remote roles through it. reddit +1
- Positive reviews highlight the clean interface, helpful AI tools, and access to jobs at smaller companies or less obvious sources. trustpilot

What it offers

- Lists only remote or hybrid roles, pulling many listings from other sites and smaller firms that may be harder to discover manually. reddit +2
- AI matching that suggests roles based on your part-time/full-time, location, etc.). reddit
- Tools to tailor your CV and generate cover letters, as well as assisted-apply features to speed up application process. reddit
- Dashboard and alerts that update you when new roles are posted. reddit

Practical advice if you're considering it

- Treat it as a paid convenience layer (AI search + automation) on top of jobs largely scraped from elsewhere, not as a magic hidden job market. reddit +1
- If you try it, immediately note the billing date, learn exactly how the money-back guarantee conditions before you pay. trustpilot
- In your first week, check:
 - Are you consistently seeing new, relevant roles?
 - Are applications being sent accurately (no false claims)?
